Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop //

Birth Of A Secret Service

THERE IS STILL a long hard row to hoe, but the foundations for a competent, professional, American secret service are now quietly being laid. It will no doubt be many years before the American service can hope to rival those of the other great powers, and it seems highly unlikely that it will ever equal the astonishing effectiveness of the famous British Secret Intelligence Service. Yet a good start has at last, after many trials and tribulations, been made.

Since any central intelligence effort inevitably threatens certain cherished empire of other departments, intelligence is certainly one of the hottest spots in the Government. This hot spot is currently occupied by Lieut. Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, a professional intelligence officer, who has replaced Admiral Sidney Sowers, an amiable Missouri businessman, as chief of the newly organized central intelligence group. Sowers' main achievement was the establishment of a sort of editorial board, which reads and digests all the Government information sufficiently secret so that it does not appear in the newspapers. This information is boiled down to a three-page, single-space, document, which is delivered every afternoon to the President for his edification. Truman is reported so well pleased with this daily briefing as it is now presented that he even vetoed a minor change in the format. The work is obviously of great importance, since it contributes largely to the President's picture of the world situation. Under Vandenberg, his work is going forward, and its quality (at first it had something of the hopeful amateurishness of a high school paper), is constantly being improved.

YET THIS PASSIVE editing and planning stage is now over. "Planning section?" Vandenberg is reported to have remarked of a section established by his predecessor, "I'm my own planning section." The positive phase of collecting and assessing secret intelligence agency, it is inevitable that some feathers will be ruffled. Already there are reports that the State Department has objected with some heat to some of the CIG's interpretations of secret reports. This conflict is perhaps inevitable, since it is the duty of an intelligence service, unlike a foreign service, to see all sorts of sinister ghosts under the bed, so that those responsible for national defense, while hoping for the best, may be prepared for the worst.

Other conflicts with established agencies of the Government will most certainly develop in the future, but at least one threat of hidden warfare seems to have been stilled. A firm agreement has been reached between the CIG and the FBI that the CIG will be wholly responsible for foreign clandestine and counter-espionage. FBI will limit itself exclusively to maintaining security.

MEANWHILE, in ably a wise move, the services-unit is in liquidation. SSU is the vestigial remnant of the cloak and dagger portion of the office of strategic services, the wartime secret service. In the course of its wartime existence OSS did on the whole an extremely valuable job, but it made some astonishing mistakes, and it also made a number of unrelenting enemies throughout the Government. These enemies have been imbibed by SSU, along with some of the less competent personnel which OSS, along with many really able men, boasted in profusion.

Moreover, secret intelligence in peace is not the same thing as secret intelligence in war. Therefore, it seemed best that SSU be disbanded in a thorough job of house-cleaning. Yet this does not mean that the foreign secret intelligence effort is being liquidated. On the contrary, it is just beginning to be put on a really professional basis.

A good start has thus been made. Yet the CIG now operates under a vague directive, and exists in a wholly amorphous state on borrowed personnel and without a budget of its own. Although they have fought bitterly on agreed that this state of affairs is unsatisfactory. Provision was therefore made in the merger bill, which President Truman has finally rammed through the reluctant throat of the Congress, for an independent intelligence agency with its own budget. If it becomes obvious that the merger bill will not pass this session, congressional leaders give it little more than one chance in a hundred—Truman will be urged to sponsor a separate bill to create such an agency.

For time is short. No one considers the entrance of this country into the dark business of clandestine intelligence a pleasant prospect, any more than the continued drafting of men into the armed services is a pleasant prospect. Yet, if the negotiations for the control of atomic energy, which Bernard M. Baruch is now conducting, break down, a competent secret intelligence service may become America's first link of defense.

Office Memorandum • UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

TO : The Director
 FROM : The Executive Conference
 SUBJECT:

DATE: July 12, 1946

National Intelligence Authority

At a meeting of the Executive Conference July 12, 1946, attended by Messrs. Tolson, Glavin, Rosen, Harbo, Nichols, Tracy and Ladd, the question was presented with reference to the National Intelligence Authority's proposal to mail out questionnaires to aliens arriving in the United States and citizens returning to the United States from points abroad was discussed. The Conference was advised that it is the present intention of the National Intelligence Authority to index all of these names, to submit questionnaires to those who appear from the original information to possess information of value to the intelligence program, and upon the return of these questionnaires to send those which appear to have information of military value to the Army and those containing apparent naval information to ONI, with a request that those agencies interview the individual for more complete details. It was pointed out that the question presents itself as to who should interview the remaining individuals, whether the FBI should insist on its rights to conduct such interviews or whether CIG should be permitted or encouraged to set up investigators for that purpose in this country.

Copy filed in 66-2554
 It was proposed that the Bureau should try and effect some distribution of the responsibilities for interviews almost along the lines of our delimitation agreements, with Naval Intelligence to conduct interviews in those cases in which the potential information relates to matters of primary Navy interest, Military Intelligence to conduct those interviews relating to Military objectives, including locations of factories and all other physical topographical and geographical information which might be of potential use in the compiling of bomb targets, etc., and the FBI to conduct those interviews relating to subversive activities, "fifth column", etc.

The Executive Conference was unanimous regarding this latter recommendation.

Respectfully,
 For the Conference

I attended a meeting of the Central Intelligence Group of the National Intelligence Authority on the afternoon of July 2, 1946. This meeting was held to discuss the attached directive #10. Representatives of the Immigration and Customs Service were present, and after discussing the attached directive, it was agreed that Immigration and Customs would be able to have the additional questions needed by the Central Intelligence Group included on the questionnaire and obtained from all aliens arriving in the United States in order that the National Intelligence Agency could index and have available in its central files, the names of all aliens and information concerning the location from which they had come, as well as the names of citizens and the locations and places which they had visited in Europe. It was then the plan of the NIA to review these questionnaires and any of those which appeared to possess information of value on a particular area such as the economics, financial setup, location of various type of factories, could be sent a questionnaire by the NIA which upon execution and return to the NIA by the individual could further be studied and in the event it was deemed desirable, the information obtained thereby could be referred either to the Army, Navy, FBI or other interested agency and in the event the other interested agency deemed it pertinent, that person could be interviewed and the information thus made available to the other intelligence agency.

This directive does not require anything from the FBI at the present time inasmuch as the Immigration and Customs have agreed they will take over the necessary contacts with the steamship companies and others at the port of entry for the purpose of endeavoring to obtain the execution of these questionnaires.

The attached proposed directive of the National Intelligence Authority covers a proposal that a type of questionnaire will be sent to persons entering the United States to determine whether they have information of value on a particular subject with reference to some foreign country in which they have lived or travelled. If the question is affirmative in its answers, the person will be interviewed to obtain the data which he possesses. This will probably raise the question as to who will interview these people in the United States to obtain information relating to economics, finances, industrial information, subversive activities, or other data which are of an intelligence nature but which are not of immediate and direct Army or Navy interest. The consideration of this question must of necessity include the realization that if the Bureau declines to interview the people submitting affirmative information on the questionnaires returned to the National Intelligence Authority, that Authority will be justified in establishing an investigative unit for operation within the United States. Of course, the information sought by this unit will ostensibly, at least, relate to conditions outside the United States. The establishment of this investigative unit, however, must be viewed in the light of its being potentially the "camel's nose under the tent" in so far as the usurpation of the domestic jurisdiction is concerned. I think the Bureau should gird itself for an all-out fight against permitting the National Intelligence Authority to operate in the domestic field, but I do think that we will have to figuratively walk a tight rope in meeting some of the issues.

If the Bureau agrees to interview the people who submit questionnaires reflecting that they possess some potential information upon some foreign country, I have no doubt but that the National Intelligence Authority will be very loose in its evaluation and will just dump on the Bureau hundreds and then thousands of names and addresses of people who have travelled or resided in some foreign country. We can interview these people but out of it the Bureau will get absolutely nothing. On the other hand, if we decline to handle these interviews, we afford the National Intelligence Authority a basis for setting up their own domestic investigative agency.

As a compromise to this situation, I think we should try and effect some distribution of the responsibilities for interviews almost along the lines of our delimitation agreements, with Naval Intelligence to conduct interviews in those cases in which the potential information relates to matters of primary Navy interest, Military Intelligence to conduct those interviews relating to Military objectives, including locations of factories and all other physical topographical and geographical information which might be of potential use in the compiling of bomb targets, etc., and the FBI to conduct those interviews relating to subversive activities, "fifth column", etc. In this way and with some studied enlargement of the subject matter to be covered by each of the three intelligence agencies in the United States, I think we would estop the National Intelligence Authority from this program as a wedge to set up domestic intelligence agencies.

Re: *C*ENTRAL INTELLIGENCE GROUP

~~PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL~~

Dear Sir:

Reference is made to your cablegram dated July 21, 1946.

On July 20, 1946, Ambassador Orme Wilson called me to his office and permitted me to scan part of a cable he had received from the Department of State on the previous day. This undoubtedly was identical with the circular cablegram described in the Bureau cablegram of reference, inasmuch as the phraseology was quite similar.

During the conversation it developed that the Ambassador had received word that this office would be closed and I would leave Port-au-Prince on September 30 next. The Ambassador expressed his satisfaction that the office would be kept open for the time being and remarked, "You will probably be replaced by somebody else."

I did not wish to pursue the matter of my replacement at the time but subsequently determined that the Ambassador has a pipeline in the State Department who keeps him informed. This pipeline recently advised of the date this office would be closed and of the probability that the Central Intelligence Group would be able to furnish an operative for this mission when the FBI personnel here is withdrawn. The indications are that the Ambassador is resigned to the Bureau's determination to close this office.

The Bureau <sup>RECORDED</sup> will be kept advised of any pertinent developments in connection with the operation of the Central Intelligence Group in this district.

EX-25

Very truly yours,

John Edgar Hoover, Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation

THE SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE SERVICE OF THE FBI

The following is submitted for your information with reference to the desire of the Central Intelligence Group to take over intelligence coverage in Latin America and the plans of the Bureau to withdraw its personnel from Latin America in order to effect the transfer of responsibility from the Federal Bureau of Investigation to the Central Intelligence Group.

You will recall that an appropriation was given to the Federal Bureau of Investigation to continue its Special Intelligence Service in Latin America through the fiscal year of 1947. However, at the time this appropriation was made, it was not understood that the National Intelligence Authority and the Central Intelligence Group had any plans for the establishment of a field operational force. The President's original directive reflected that it was his intention that the National Intelligence Authority through the Central Intelligence Group act as a coordinating agency for intelligence and there is no indication that it was contemplated that a new world-wide field operational force be set up.

[Redacted] b3
I requested advice of General Vandenberg as to whether it was intended that the Federal Bureau of Investigation withdraw from the intelligence field in Latin America. General Vandenberg replied by letter, dated July 3, 1946, "I am very pleased to concur in your offer to withdraw from Central and South America" and went on to say that this is contingent upon postponement of our withdrawal until the Central Intelligence Group is organized and the transfer may be made with a minimum of interruption. General Vandenberg also indicated it might be necessary that the FBI continue for the better part of the fiscal year.

RECORDED 62-8671-36

I replied to General Vandenberg's letter and advised him that it would be well to work out immediately an acceptable program to permit the transfer of the responsibilities for intelligence coverage in the Central and South American countries on an orderly basis. Subsequently, his representatives have held two conferences with my representatives regarding details of the transfer. These details have not been as yet completely worked out, particularly with reference to a time schedule for the withdrawal of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

I am, of course, most anxious that this be consummated at the earliest possible date. Efficient and productive operations in intelligence are not possible on a short-range basis, and, therefore, a prolongation of the responsibilities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation at this time would serve no good purpose. I would also like to observe that the personnel presently engaged in Latin American work is critically needed by the Bureau and I am, therefore, anxious to have them return to domestic assignment as soon as possible.

Lieutenant General Hoyt S. Vandenberg
Director
Central Intelligence Group
Room 2166
New War Department Building
21st and Virginia Avenue, N. W.
Washington, D. C.

Dear General Vandenberg:

I have received your letter of July 29, 1946, reflecting that you will assign one of your men to Costa Rica upon the withdrawal of FBI personnel on August 16, 1946. The property in Costa Rica, including the radio station, will be ready to turn over to you on that date in accordance with previous agreements and arrangements.

I would appreciate it if you will advise what should be done with the property that is being reserved for the CIG in Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, in view of the fact that you will not have a man to take over that office upon the withdrawal of the FBI representative.

With reference to both Panama and the Dominican Republic, as I previously advised it will be necessary that the FBI personnel be withdrawn on the dates previously set due to pressing commitments for this personnel.

With best wishes and kind regards,

Sincerely yours,

Walter Hoover

With reference to plans to turn over certain property in our field stations to the Central Intelligence Group, you will recall that in the letter transmitted to the Bureau by the CIG dated July 17, 1946, they stated, "We request that all office and technical equipment now held in field stations be marked for transfer to our representatives on the withdrawal of the FBI and that an inventory of such equipment be now prepared for our review. Such a list would include office furniture and fixtures, typewriters, file cabinets, and photographic equipment for developing and printing." Also it was stated, "We request that radio communications equipment in field stations be preserved for transfer to our representatives.....We request that automobiles now in the field be made available for transfer to our representatives." This matter was also brought up by the representatives of the Central Intelligence Group in the conference of July 18, 1946, as is reflected in your memorandum to the Director dated July 18, 1946.

Pursuant to the approval of the Director, inventories of equipment of our field SIS stations which could be turned over to the CIG were prepared, reviewed by the Administrative Division, and turned over to the CIG as reflected in my memorandum of July 23, 1946. In general we reserved for return to the Bureau all firearms, cameras, technical equipment of all kinds, block stamping machines, automobiles shipped to South America by the Bureau, etc. With reference to radio stations also in accordance with the approval of the Director, it was proposed to the CIG that they furnish to us in Washington identical equipment to that maintained in Latin America, whereupon our equipment would be retained in Latin America for the CIG. This was agreed to by the CIG and we are now in the process of furnishing them inventories of radio equipment.

As noted, CIG already has the inventories of office furniture, etc. and are expecting that we leave this property for their use when we withdraw from the South American stations. As a matter of fact, most of this equipment had been marked for turning over to the Embassy, Military, or Naval Attaches when previous consideration had been given to terminating our SIS program. None of the equipment is suitable for shipping back to the Bureau for future use of the Bureau. We had planned selling any property not desired by the Embassy to the highest bidder when previous plans were made for closing.

12. All prior regulations, rulings, and other directives relating to any function transferred by this order shall remain in effect except as they are in conflict with this order or are hereafter amended or revoked under proper authority.

13. All provisions of prior Executive orders and of prior instruments of any Federal agency in conflict with this order are amended accordingly. Each transfer of functions provided for in this order shall be effective on such date, not later than December 31, 1945, as shall be designated jointly by the Director of the Bureau of the Budget and the head of the agency to which the function is transferred. Pending such designations the officers and agencies from whom functions are transferred under this order shall continue to administer their respective functions.

A conference was held this morning with representatives of the Central Intelligence Group in accordance with Mr. Tamm's memorandum of July 18, 1946, reflecting the initial conference with General Vandenberg's representatives. Mr. Carson, Mr. Keay, and I represented the Bureau.

The CIG representatives were given information as to the titles used and the number of people we had in the various Embassies in Latin America, which was in accordance with their request as set out in Mr. Tamm's memorandum of July 18, 1946. The Police Liaison men were not listed, nor were the positions included which are being vacated by our recent recall program, it being noted that this recall was already a matter of record prior to the request of the CIG inasmuch as we had advised Fred Lyon of the State Department.

There were also furnished to the group copies of inventories of property which may be released to them in Latin America after these inventories were examined by Mr. Glavin. There were not included on the inventories the radio stations inasmuch as these are being covered under a separate arrangement. There are attached hereto copies of the inventories as furnished to CIG.

I think it is most unfortunate & in fact rather sadistic that CIG assign two ex-agents who are persona non grata to be liaison on this. However we will just keep this in mind. Be most circumspect in all dealings. 4. ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

For record purposes, it may be noted that on August 8th the Attorney General sent for me and displayed to me the original of a letter addressed to him under date of August 8th over the signatures of Messrs. Patterson, Acheson, Sullivan and Leahy relating to the transfer of SIS functions to the CIG. I outlined at considerable length the Director's views with reference to the taking over of SIS by CIG and advised the Attorney General that the proposed schedule was grossly unsatisfactory to the Bureau. I outlined to the Attorney General all of the developments in this situation since the first of July and pointed out the Director's views, and told him that the Director felt that the CIG should take over the first group of Latin American offices on September 15, the second on November 1st and the third group on January 1st. At the termination of my statement of the Bureau's position, the Attorney General stated that he desired to "go along" with the request of Patterson et al in so far as it was practical and possible because he felt that the President undoubtedly concurred in this program. I told the Attorney General that I would read the letter to the Attorney General to Mr. Hoover by telephone and would furnish the Attorney General with Mr. Hoover's views by memorandum. Such a memorandum was prepared, approved by the Director and forwarded to the Attorney General. You are familiar with its contents.

Attached hereto are copies of the letter to Mr. Clark.

The Attorney General also furnished to me a copy of a personal letter addressed to him by U. S. Ambassador Pawley in Brazil, in which Mr. Pawley protests against the withdrawal of the FBI Agents. The original of this letter was returned to the Attorney General but copies are attached hereto for maintenance in the Bureau files.

In accordance with your instructions, I contacted Jack Neal of the State Department in the absence of Fred Lyon. I gave him a copy of the letter from General Chamberlain of G-2 relative to the Panama Office and went over with him the entire picture with reference to the Bureau's position concerning the closing of the Panama Office. I asked him in view of Mr. Braden's phone call to you yesterday to get this letter to the attention of Mr. Braden at once. Mr. Neal stated that he would endeavor to see Mr. Braden and discuss this matter with him tonight or in any event tomorrow morning, that he would let me know the results of his discussion with Mr. Braden.

Upon the occasion of my recent visit to Uruguay, I talked with Mr. E. J. Sparks, Charge d'Affaires in the American Embassy. It will be noted that the new Ambassador, Joseph McGurk, with whom we formerly worked in the Dominican Republic, has not yet arrived in Uruguay to take over the post of Ambassador. Mr. Sparks, as Counselor of Embassy under former Ambassador William Dawson, is the official with whom we have worked very closely in Uruguay during the war.

I explained to him the Bureau's position and status in the current situation with regard to foreign intelligence [redacted] He expressed extreme regret and seemed to be sincerely disappointed and disillusioned that the Bureau is withdrawing from Latin America and the work that we have been doing. He expressed apprehension at the idea of a new group such as the CIG coming in and taking over. He is a career officer and is quite frankly apprehensive as to how the CIG will fit into ordinary Embassy operations abroad. I explained to him how little we really know about their detailed plans of operation and contemplated procedures, pointing out that we assume they are negotiating with the State Department as to procedures, methods, etc. to be followed.

Mr. Sparks was very high in his praise of the Bureau's work in Uruguay throughout the war. He mentioned the fact that if former Ambassador William Dawson was still on the scene, he would undoubtedly protest the decision concerning the CIG very vigorously. Sparks himself is a career officer and being only charge d'affaires, he follows the traditional custom of not protesting anything very much. He has, however, always been very friendly with our Agents and has proved entirely cooperative in connection with our work. He mentioned a desire to visit the Bureau in Washington when opportunity next offers and he was invited to do so.

XX - 60 &amp;

INDEXED 62-80750-153

It is believed that Sparks is a sincere friend and admirer of you and the FBI. He naturally prefers the FBI to any group insofar as foreign intelligence is concerned inasmuch as he knows by personal experience that the FBI can work with the regular career service without disrupting their routine to any appreciable extent. He is naturally apprehensive concerning the CIG although in his present position he will probably be non-committal and not take any specific or positive action one way or another.

Dear General Vandenberg:

In view of the current tense world situation, particularly in Europe and the Orient, and in view of the world-wide intelligence coverage which has been assumed by the Central Intelligence Group, I should like to request that any information which might possibly be of assistance to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in connection with its responsibilities for the internal security of the United States be furnished to me promptly. It will be of great value if detailed information relating to the aims, intentions, or activities of foreign nations with respect to clandestine or subversive operations against the United States be furnished to me. You, of course, realize that a wide variety of such information is a necessity for proper and adequate protection of the internal security of the United States. I shall be greatly appreciative of any assistance along this line that the Central Intelligence Group may be able to render to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

With best wishes and kind regards,

Pursuant to your instructions, I talked to the Attorney General this morning at his request with reference to the SIG situation. He stated that he had been to the White House yesterday and that he spent almost two hours talking to the President about this situation. Prior to the time that he talked to the President, Admiral Leahy had talked to the Attorney General and had indicated to him that it was desired that the Department of Justice through the Bureau render every possible assistance to the CIG in taking over the SIG work in South America. Admiral Leahy indicated that the CIG would not be able to move into any of the countries as rapidly as the Bureau desired to withdraw from them but that the State Department desired to insure a continuity of coverage and that, consequently, the Bureau should only withdraw upon the basis of a harmonious schedule with CIG moving in to take over the various countries.

The Attorney General stated he talked to the President about this situation and the President indicated some doubt that the CIG would work but the President stated he had to at least try it out in view of the recommendations made to him by his Cabinet members. The Attorney General advised him that Ambassador Farley, Spruille Braden and various other State Department representatives were very much opposed to FBI withdrawing but the President thought the FBI should coordinate its program in such a way that CIG could move in on an orderly basis and take over the operations. The Attorney General desired, therefore, that the Bureau arrange through appropriate conference with CIG so as to insure that our withdrawal would be upon the basis of CIG's ability to move in and take over the operations in various countries.

I advised the Attorney General that while you had not so stated in your recent memorandum, you had instructed me to advise him orally that the CIG was definitely stalling in this situation. I pointed out to him that it was rather inconsistent that Bureau

Agents were not good enough to carry on the SIS operations in the Latin Americas but at the same time their services are so indispensable that they cannot now be withdrawn or replaced. I told the Attorney General that the CIG had a bright group of alleged intelligence representatives, including a number of men who had deserted from the service of the FBI during the war, who appeared, according to CIG estimates, at least capable of carrying on the SIS operations. I stated that as a matter of fact General Vandenberg had the effrontery to designate as his representatives to confer with the Bureau on the change-over of operations ex-FBI Agents who had deserted from the Bureau service while on foreign assignment and who were definitely persona non grata to you and to the Bureau.

The Attorney General was advised that you had instructed that we be entirely reasonable in attempting to work out a schedule for the transfer of SIS duties but that from the schedule submitted by CIG, it was very obvious that CIG was stalling and the dates set by them were unreasonable. I told him that you had, upon the basis of my previous conversation with him in which he expressed the desire to support the President in getting this plan set up and in operation, instructed that we make reasonable concessions to the CIG in an effort to bring about a reasonable schedule for the transfer of duties. I pointed out to the Attorney General that the withdrawal of individual personnel, such as the withdrawal of the Legal Attaché in Brazil, did not indicate that the office was being closed but that this was an administrative transfer of an individual Agent predicated upon a reduction program which you had outlined subsequent to the termination of the war. I told the Attorney General that there were some 25 or 30 men currently under transfer back to the United States but that these transfers had nothing to do with the change-over of the SIS coverage to CIG, but rather were routine transfers which would have been effected even though the Bureau remained in SIS. I told the Attorney General you desired him to have this information in the event any question were raised about the recall to the United States of any individual Agent.

The Attorney General stated that he desired to make reasonable concessions to CIA in permitting them to take over the intelligence coverage and stated he desired me to talk to Admiral Leahy and outline to him the Bureau's problem and its position with reference to these problems. I suggested to the Attorney General that, in the light of the information which I had furnished to him, he might desire himself to talk to Admiral Leahy and indicate that we would go along in anything that was reasonable in the light of all the circumstances, but the Attorney General stated he believed it would be better if a Bureau representative conferred direct with Admiral Leahy. He stated he would call Admiral Leahy and arrange an appointment and asked that I let him know how we made out with Leahy.

The Attorney General indicated that he told the President that it was anticipated that CIA would try to proselyte the Bureau's personnel and the President said that of course he would not tolerate anything of that kind and if it became necessary, he would issue an order to CIA prohibiting them from hiring FBI people.

Efficient Intelligence Agency Held Vital for U. S. Defense

CHARLOTTESVILLE, June 30.—An efficient strategical intelligence agency is America's first-line of national defense, writes David K. E. Bruce, who recently completed four years of service with the Co-ordinator of Information and the Office of Strategic Services, in the Summer 1946 issue of the Virginia Quarterly Review, just published at the University of Virginia.

"No matter how strong an air force, Army or Navy, we maintain, we can never be proof in the atomic age, against the effects of a sudden hostile attack upon our key cities and industries, unless we have foreknowledge of enemy plans and capabilities," Mr. Bruce continues.

Mr. Bruce, a native of Maryland and an alumnus of the University of Virginia, has drawn on his own experience. After serving in World War I as an officer of Field Artillery, he entered the United States Foreign Service and became vice-consul at Rome. He was later attached to the State Department in Washington. His practical experience with the OSS was gained both in this country and abroad.

"Until very recently," writes Mr. Bruce, "the United States government has never possessed even the semblance of a satisfactory strategical information service. Our continued inability to formulate a comprehensive foreign policy may have been in part ascribed to the lack of reliable current information available to policy makers on foreign affairs."

"Military and naval intelligence offices in Washington were, until 1941, dominated by a purely insular attitude toward world affairs. Concurrently, at the State Department a spirit of smug self-satisfaction prevailed.

"The attack on Pearl Harbor startled us like some gigantic dissonant firebell in the night of our false security. We felt betrayed and indeed we were. We were betrayed by the complete failure of our intelligence agencies. Resenting the insult to our national pride, we tended too much to ascribe Pearl Harbor to Japanese treachery, rather than to our neglect of elementary intelligence and security precautions. The intelligence services of the old departments were in a moribund state."

Mr. Bruce relates at some detail the activities of the COI and OSS as established by order of President Roosevelt under William J. "Wild Bill" Donovan though "harassed and badgered by the jealousy of the Army, Navy and State Departments." He makes a strong plea for an efficient strategical information agency in time of peace.

 SUBJECT: National Intelligence Authority:
Discussion by David K. E. Bruce in The Virginia Quarterly Review

The Richmond Field Division has called to the attention of the Bureau an article entitled "The National Intelligence Authority" by David K. E. Bruce which appeared in The Virginia Quarterly Review, summer issue of 1946. Bruce is described by the magazine as an Army officer who in the latter part of 1945 rounded out four years of service with the COI, which later became the Office of Strategic Services. He is said to have served for 2½ years in the Field Artillery during the first World War and to have later entered the United States Foreign Service. It is said that much of Bruce's service with OSS was in Great Britain and the Review adds that his practical experience at home and abroad enables him to speak with authority in urging the importance of a strong Central Intelligence organization for this country.

Bruce begins his discussion by pointing out the necessity for maintenance of a strong American Foreign Intelligence Agency on a permanent basis. He reviews the inadequacies of our intelligence organizations prior to World War II, stressing the fact that until that time we had no intelligence services of any kind worthy of the name. He pointed out that we were unique among the great powers in this respect. Bruce recalled that in World War I the United States had established a Cryptographic Corps and that in 1929 this had been dissolved. He added that during 1917 and 1918 the Army and Navy had developed a slight acquaintance with the techniques of secret intelligence and counterespionage activities, but that the most capable men engaged in this work were soon dispersed.

The author points out, that with the attack on Pearl Harbor, we realized we had been betrayed by the complete failure of our intelligence agencies! "Any intelligence service worthy of the name should have foretold this event. It seems incredible that we have been so unaware of Japanese plans and projects. The Japanese scarcely attempted to conceal their spying activities. Counterespionage, monitoring and interception of messages from their Consulates in the Hawaiian Islands should have yielded a rich harvest." It is then pointed out that we should have drastically reorganized our intelligence service immediately, but we failed to do so. Here the author speaks disparagingly of the activities of G-2 and ONI and to the short-sightedness of the State Department. He points out that the latter refused to permit the assignment of trained observers to Vichy France who could have worked with the French underground. He then begins a discussion of the establishment and activities of the Office of Coordinator of Information (COI) under William J. Donovan, which he refers to as the first organization in United States' History which promised centralization of data required for strategic decisions on highest policy levels. Bruce points out that Donovan encountered jealousies on the part of War, Navy and State Department officials, but because of his "ability, courage, and imagination" and "his almost unique qualities of leadership and his remarkable facility of eliciting from all types of men and women loyal and conscientious service to the government" he was able to attract men of inestimable worth to the new organization. Bruce extols the accomplishments of the COI and OSS during the war, but points out that because of the above-mentioned jealousies of the older services the organization never reached its highest potential of success.

Bruce then refers to the well-known "Donovan plan," which he says was prepared at the suggestion of the President and outlined a permanent postwar intelligence organization. Here again he refers to the obstructionist tactics of the State, War, and Navy Departments, which prevented Donovan's plan from being adopted. He points out, however, that the plan in essence was finally adopted more than a year later with the establishment of the NIA. He expresses regret because the NIA was not to be given an independent budget, saying it was thus gravely handicapped. He pointed out that dominant positions would be held by State, War, and Navy representatives, and that it would be difficult to recruit competent civilians. He pointed out also that it was improbable that busy Secretaries of the three departments could devote sufficient time to the direction of the NIA and that as a result, it may decline to the position of an ineffective coordinator between the established intelligence agencies who in the past have shown marked disinclination to coordinate.

Bruce concludes his article by stressing the fact that an espionage and counterespionage organization demands a degree of technical skill, of administrative ability, and knowledge of foreign languages, customs and history such as is exacted by no other profession. He expresses the belief that the charter for an intelligence agency must be an exclusive one because "competitive activities by other departments or agencies make the necessary secrecy of its missions impossible and endanger the security and even the lives of its operatives." He points out that an efficient, strategical intelligence agency is the country's first line of defense.

It is to be noted that no reference to the Bureau appeared in this article.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON
MR. TAMM
MR. NICHOLS

On September 9th I saw Mr. JACK CARLISLE of the Detroit News, who called to see me, he stated, because of the desire of his Publisher, Mr. Scripps, to ascertain whether the FBI was actually on top of the Communist situation in the United States. Mr. Carlisle stated that his query was not one for publication, but merely one for assurance and background guidance.

I told Mr. Carlisle that of course I could not be quoted and could not make any statement for publication. I told him that up to the present time this Bureau had been on top of the Communist situation in the United States, but as to the future I had some qualms. I stated this was due to the fact that the FBI was being withdrawn from foreign intelligence coverage, particularly in South America, Central America and the Caribbean, and that in line with the administration's policy of dividing domestic and foreign intelligence, a separate agency would cover all foreign activities. I stated I believed this would be a great handicap in the coverage of Communist activities in this country because Communism being international, I did not see how from a practical point of view an agency responsible for such coverage within the United States could adequately perform its functions without having similar coverage abroad.

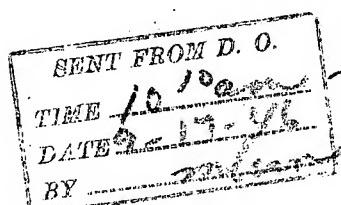

I also pointed out to Mr. Carlisle one of the great obstacles under which we operate, and which of course still prevails, is a lack of adequate laws under which anything could be done against Communism. I stated this matter had not been pressing up to the present time, but that should there develop any precarious international situation there was no doubt that the Communists within the United States - most of whom are either native born or naturalized - would become a serious problem because they could not be arrested until the actual commission of overt acts, which would of course be too late in the case of any possible war, as sabotage could be consummated and vast destruction could be effected before laws could be enacted which would permit arrests to be made.

Very truly yours

Mr. Frederick B. Lyon
Director, Office of Controls
Department of State
Washington, D. C.

Dear Freddie:

In view of the desire of the Central Intelligence Group headed by General Hoyt S. Vandenberg to take over all intelligence coverage in Latin America, the Federal Bureau of Investigation of course is preparing to withdraw its personnel from this field and turn over responsibility to the Central Intelligence Group.

I want to take this occasion to express my sincere appreciation for your splendid cooperation during the years that the Federal Bureau of Investigation operated in the Latin American intelligence field. Your assistance contributed materially to the success of our operations during the difficult war years. I am indeed appreciative of the personal interest displayed by you in the difficult problem of intelligence coverage faced by the Federal Bureau of Investigation when it took over such work in 1940. I hope that the Federal Bureau of Investigation may continue to be of assistance to you in connection with our mutual problems.

With best wishes and kind regards,

Sincerely yours,
